

who, in 53 years of State service, has stayed young and forward-looking. Everyone, patients and their families, employees, visitors, and friends. Mr. Dayhoff is an example of Spring Grove progress.

As Governor of Maryland, I have made an effort here at the Spring Grove State Hospital to provide buildings of the type we have here, which will implement active treatment and will eliminate the old center building. When I became Governor, one of my first acts was to ask the legislature to appropriate funds for replacement facilities for the old center building. Just to the west of us is now being constructed a 200-bed infirmary building and a central service building, and three 100-bed cottages for the treatment of patients requiring long-term care. This fine structure which has been designed by Mr. Henry Powell Hopkins has modern treatment facilities and will be used for the admission and active treatment of patients whose medical prognosis is that they can be discharged from the hospital in a relatively short period of time.

We are fortunate in Maryland to have such an employee as Mr. Dayhoff. To all of us he has become a living example of the words of St. Francis of Assisi:

“Where there is hatred, let me sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon; where
There is doubt, faith; where there is
Despair, hope; where there is darkness
Light; where there is sadness, joy.”

REMARKS, GROUNDBREAKING CEREMONY OF THE MARYLAND INSTITUTION FOR MEN

BREATHEDSVILLE

May 10, 1962

The ceremony we are participating in this morning formally begins work on the construction of the new Maryland Institution for Men. More important, it marks a significant milestone in the history of our penal system in Maryland and in the annals of the Department of Correction of our State government.

It is a source of great pride to me that the edifice which will soon
