

Q. Do you expect that the difference in parties will affect your decision to make him your top legal adviser?

A. I think it would be unrealistic to think that, on matters that may have political overtones, Mr. Burch would be consulted as freely as if he were of the same political party.

Q. Does that mean that you have your own legal staff?

A. Not necessarily my own legal staff. It means that I will have my own legal advisers.

Q. When is that going to be?

A. Well, that is pretty hard to say at this point. I have got some very good friends in the legal profession. One of them was my campaign adviser, Mr. George White. I have a very high regard for his opinion. He will not be a part of my administration in the sense of a paid member, but I'm certainly going to consult him about legal matters.

Q. Mr. Agnew, getting back to this Bay bridge question. Does Mr. Wolff have any ideas, or has he volunteered any ideas on a second Bay bridge?

A. No.

Q. Who are some of the other people? You mentioned Mr. White. Who are some of the people who you feel are closest to you, whom you lean on heaviest?

A. There was an article not too long ago about the fact that I hadn't found it necessary to lean on too many people. I would like to continue that precedent. I've got quite a few friends in the legal profession because my background is that of a lawyer. Certainly Mr. Dobbin, in the financial field, is a close friend. There are many other friends I have. But I don't think there are any that I could say I lean upon to the extent that I call them about every decision I'm going to make.

Q. Mr. Agnew, do you feel that your relationship will be harmonious with Mr. Anderson in Baltimore County as a subdivision?

A. I would like very much to make it a very harmonious relationship. I understand from firsthand information some of the problems Mr. Anderson has, and I would like to help him as much as I can with them.

Q. Mr. Agnew, I would like to ask about this political thing a little further. In view of the fact that you're a Republican in an otherwise Democratic state, do you fear that most of the decisions that you will
