

various counties, the commissioners and the county executives make it well known to me that they are dissatisfied with the rapidity with which our programs are proceeding, and of course there is only one thing that is going to change this; it's money. Moreover, toll facilities on the major highways do place a measure of the burden on the user who is not a resident and do help the resident to put his tax dollars into something more constructive and immediate to him.

Q. At a recent meeting of the State Roads Commission, Governor, it was disclosed that the funds available to the Roads Commission had dropped to such a point that the resurfacing program around the State that is normally conducted during the springtime has had to be abandoned. Chairman Wolff indicated grave concern that the State is not putting in enough money to protect the roads it does have. He said also that more money is needed. May we have your reaction to this?

A. I have no personal knowledge of this particular problem you mentioned. I'd like to discuss it with Mr. Wolff before I comment, because I really have nothing to comment on.

Q. Governor, Congressman Long's continued objections to the bridge proposal have been sent in the mail to the various news media under the Congressional franking privilege. I wonder if you have any feeling about whether or not that is a legitimate use of the service?

A. I don't think it's a proper use of a Congressman's newsletter, but I'm not surprised that it's been done because the Congressman has been doing this for years. I can think of five or six other political issues without naming them specifically, because I couldn't recall them in that context. But I can remember that they were timely, and they were highly political, and they were argued in a very one-sided fashion in the Congressman's newsletter. This is an abuse that he seems to have fallen into. Maybe he thinks it's right by now to do this.

Q. Governor, Mr. Moylan yesterday called for an all out war on crime. I wonder if you would care to tell us your view on it?

A. I noticed the report of Mr. Moylan's remarks in the late editions of the newspapers yesterday, and I want to say right here that I have a very high respect for Charlie Moylan. I think he's an excellent State's Attorney and a dedicated public servant, and I want to discuss this question of correlating and integrating our attack on crime with him. Just this past week, just a few days ago, I commented on the new Federal crime program in a prepared statement, which I assume has by now been distributed to you gentlemen. Again, this is a money prob-
