

as your personal representative or liaison with the Task Force. It is important that this person be fully experienced and informed on every facet of your unit's administrative responsibilities and programs. It is equally essential that you have complete confidence in your representative's judgment, for accurate evaluation of your department's efficiency and effectiveness will be an integral part of the Task Force study.

Although Mr. Lauber will elaborate upon the details of the project, I will briefly cover the pertinent stages. The first has been the development of a sensitive questionnaire which will be cleared by the program executives and sent to each of you during the second week in July. Response to this questionnaire should be assembled by your representative and your signature upon the completed copy will indicate your verification and approval of the contents.

A team composed of the program executive and budget analyst responsible for your department will evaluate the questionnaire and report their analysis to the Task Force. Subsequently, you will be requested to attend a conference with Mr. Lauber and Mr. Slicher to discuss any questions or problems which have been raised by the initial critique. As a result of these conferences, recommendations on necessary reorganization will be developed for my approval.

It is my hope that the 1969 budget will reflect the changes both in organization and program which have resulted from the Task Force study. Therefore, it will be essential to complete this comprehensive and intensive evaluation by the first week in December.

Finally, may I again express my complete faith that the efforts of the Task Force will not only benefit the total State administration, but every agency, department, board or commission individually; that it will stimulate not only the external modernization of the State administration, but the internal development of improved efficiency, economy and effectiveness within each unit of the executive branch.
