

Lawrence J. Hogan, Prince George's County attorney, advertising and public relations executive, and former FBI agent.

Jack Marshall Stark, Rockville attorney and former assistant U. S. Attorney for the District of Columbia.

Paul A. Dorf, Baltimore attorney and State Senator, former chief magistrate of the City's police courts.

Dr. Eugene Meyer, III, professor of psychiatry and associate professor of medicine at the Johns Hopkins University.

Miss Anita R. Williams, member of the Board of Managers of Montrose School for Girls.

Dr. Gilbert Ware, the Governor's program executive for Health, Welfare and Human Relations.

Charles E. Moylan, Jr., State's Attorney for Baltimore City.

Judge Robert Hammerman, Judge for Juvenile Causes and a member of the Baltimore Supreme Bench.

Donald Pomerleau, Commissioner of Baltimore City Police.

Edwin Tully, Special Agent in Charge of the Baltimore Office of the FBI.

Arnold Hopkins of the Office of Law Enforcement and Assistance, Washington, D. C., will serve as an adviser to the commission.

The Governor also designated the following State officials as advisory members: Robert J. Lally, Superintendent of State Police; Joseph G. Cannon, Commissioner of Correction; Paul C. Wolman, Director of Parole and Probation; Richard A. Batterton, Director of Juvenile Services; Major General George M. Gelston, State Adjutant General.

The new commission replaces the Governor's Commission on Crime and Delinquency, which Governor Tawes created in August, 1966, but which never became fully operational. Many of its members moved on to other assignments and duties.

ADDRESS TO CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION,
STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS

July 11, 1967

I congratulate the people of Maryland for causing this convention to assemble and for sending to it this distinguished and very well qualified delegation.