

the day was on Saturday morning before breakfast time it being asked in his owne bedchamber his people and servants ever having of plauke the place was in a boye aduising to his bed side and on the thirtenth day of the same month at night he occupied me againe And on the eighteenth day of the same month he drew me into his bed and brought the Chamber pot to lay by his bed side and said unto me Come to bed unto me I replied I would not he answered me I should be pleased againe and said I would not he answered and said unto me that it were better to live with him in a good fleeter bed then in the Court at length being overcome by his signed persuasions

I yielded unto him and went in with him and on the twentieth day of the same month at night as I was fast asleep in a Court before mentioned he came unto me and pulled of the Cloths or Coverings admiring at such a thing being some what affrighted perceived who was there and starting I struck him on the face he had me hold my tongue for shame as it was he intreated him to leave me alone notwithstanding to work he goes whilst he could doe no more and on the tenth day of February in the same year at noon day it being a Friday as I was sitting in the afore said

Church mourning of small Junon and Likewise weeping he asked me wherefore I wept, did I said are you weeping for Henry And Further said hee is Henry will serve your turne as well as he the which you weep for, And at length asked me if he should not haue about which it is to say to occupy me as well as he And Further said he might as well occupy me now as he did before for said hee it could be no worse then it is but at length he did make use of me as he was accustomed to doe And further said
