

by the Acts of eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, Chapter four hundred and eighty-three, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted, so as to read as follows:

Sec. 179. Of the seventy-three jurors so drawn and summoned, the forty-eight names first occurring in the order in which they were drawn shall attend court at its opening session for the ensuing term, and the court, at the beginning of said term, shall select and appoint one from the said forty-eight jurors who shall be the foreman of the grand jury, and shall direct the Clerk of the Court to legibly write upon ballots the names of the remaining forty-seven jurors, and after carefully folding the said ballots separately, to place them in a box with sliding top, and said Clerk shall draw said ballots therefrom one at a time, without looking into said box, and the first twenty-two names drawn, with the foreman previously appointed, shall constitute the grand jury, and the remaining twenty-five shall constitute the petit jury for the first week of said term. The remaining twenty-five jurors of the seventy-three drawn and summoned shall constitute the second week's petit jury for said term, and shall not attend until said second week, and the panels of petit jurors for the first and second week shall attend alternately, unless required by the court to do otherwise, and the Clerk of the Court shall publish for two successive weeks, before each jury term of said court, in the newspaper authorized to do the county printing, beginning with the jury for the October term, nineteen hundred, for said publication a list of the forty-eight jurors who are required to attend on the first day of court, and also a list of the twenty-five jurors who are required to attend on the second week of court.

Approved March 29, 1900.
