visions in the Constitution as will prevent the existence of such a difficulty. Some method must either be provided there, or the matter must be left to that common law which the great expounder of the Constitution has laid down in the case of Luther vs. Borden, as the American doctrine. There is no practical difficulty, however; for, in this age of the world, no man will so clog the wheels of government as to stay progress or prevent improvement. With us, danger is to be apprehended rather from a contrary source. We need brakes—we are going too rapidly.

Mr. D. then proceeded to speak of the right of revolution, as recognized (for extreme cases,) by the Constitution,

But gave way to a motion that the Convention adjourn.

The motion having been agreed to, the Convention adjourned until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

FRIDAY, January 31st, 1851.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. GRAUFF.

The roll having been called—no quorum was present.

Mr. MICHAEL NEWCOMER. I move a call of the Convention.

The PRESIDENT. The roll has just been called.

Mr. NEWCOMER. How then are we to get the members here? I suppose the proper plan will be to send the officers of the Convention for them.

After some conversation, the President directed the Secretary again to call the names of those members who had not answered on the first call of the roll.

The names having been accordingly called, and a number of members having entered the hall, ad interim, a quorum was found to be present.

The journal of yesterday was read and approved.

The President laid before the Convention a communication from the Treasurer of the State, relative to the interest on taxes which has been remitted by the Executive under the provisions of chapter 207, of December session 1842, as required by the order of the Convention of 3rd inst.

Which was read, and

On motion of Mr. BROWN,
Ordered to be printed.
