3 For that reason we suggest that the majority bases
4 its report not only on any motives of individual members of 5 the committee as has been alluded to in certain charges of 6 special interest, but rather requests that you impute good 7 faith both to the majority and minority reports and at 8 worst after hearing the deliberations conclude that one 9 was conscientiously right or conscientiously wrong. The 10 majority recommendations make the case for recognizing that 11 lay persons who have volunteered to serve without pay 12 should be continued in order to insure that position and 13 political expediency shall have no place in the educational 14 structure of the State.

15 For the last 13 weeks we have been attempting to 16 fashion a Constitution for the State of Maryland, a body
17 politic to serve the needs of the people of this State.

18 We have attempted to make this body politic a 19 living one. In the traditional three branches of govern-
20 ment, we have provided the torso, the local government,
21 its appendages, taxation and finance its blood streams,
