

1 Again we would like to illustrate the difference by the 2 story of the man who loved children. There is a story of 3 the man who loved children and we contend, as our Chairman
4 indicates, that both the majority and minority love
5 children. This man had a new driveway put into his home, 6 and after the driveway had been poured, as is traditional 7 with children, they began to inscribe their initials in the 8 cement. After it was apparent that they were doing some 9 bit of damage to the driveway the man ran out and began 10 chiding them in a loud and unequivocal voice. Two of the 11 neighbors came out and they said, "My, this is very strange, 12 we always thought Mr. Jones loved children".

13 To which the wiser and more discreet neighbor
14 said, "Yes, but Mr. Jones has always loved children in the 15 abstract, but not in the concrete".

16 If this can in any way summarize our position,
17 I think it will.

18 We believe in our majority report that the 19 general concept of the State as suggested by the minority
20 should instead be the General Assembly, the State being a 21 more indefinite term/ than the General Assembly as having been
