

1 DELEGATE LORD: I anticipated that amendment
2 to some extent. I don't think it adds anything because 3 I think it further muddies the water. I think the point
4 has been made clear by Delegates Raley, Borom, Winslow and 5 Cardin, that no one knows what this clause means. Certain-6 ly the Majority in the short space of one month from 7 November, or two weeks actually from November 9 to Novem-
8 ber 27, when it submitted its memorandum, has changed its 9 position entirely. Everyone in the Majority is quite clear
10 that it meant free tuition for as long as the child wanted
11 to go to school. Now they disavow this intention and say 12 that the words are "incapable of precise definition".

13 Now, if this confusion exists in this body, I 14 submit that this confusion is going to be compounded when 15 this language is incorporated into a document that is to 16 go to the people for application. I submit that it is a 17 litigation breeder of the worst sort; even without this 18 language in the State of Virginia there is a pending law-
19 suit brought by a county of the type that was described 20 by Dr. Pullen that receives small amounts of money from 21 the State to equalize that amount of money that is received
