

1 ought to take a look at it or know about it so as to
2 be familiar with the fact that it is in the Constitution
3 and is being considered. Therefore, the secondary assign-
4 ment is for your consideration. The primary assignment
5 fixes the responsibility.

6 In connection with this memorandum, let me urge 7 you to use the two-column comparison of the present
8 Constitution and the draft Constitution which is in the 9 Commission's final report. You will find it helpful
10 as a means of getting on one page a precise language of 11 the Constitution that you have. The present Constitution,
12 as you know, is in the left-hand column of that comparison.

13 We have now got into a volume of proposals
14 and are approaching the point at which committees may be 15 making reports with respect to various proposals. It is 16 contemplated that it will be more convenient for you to 17 have the proposals in your book in this room; that is,
18 your book which contains all the proposals, have them
19 regrouped, not by number, but by committee, and then
20 within the committee, by number. This will mean that you 21 will have within this book a number of tabs, with the
