

1 be on the desks.

2 THE CHAIRMAN: Pages, please distribute
3 Amendment E.

4 You may proceed, Delegate Mitchell.

5 DELEGATE MITCHELL: Mr. President, fellow
6 Delegates, the war in Viet Nam and the troubles in 7 Greece and the skirmishes in other sections of the world
8 are not the only wars that confront us as we sit here
9 in this Convention. There is another war and a continuing 10 battle, but it is between man and the machines. The 11 first industrial revolution was brought in by steam by 12 the discovery of steam and electricity, but we are now
13 in a second industrial revolution brought on by electronics
14 and atomics.

15 Now, in the first industrial revolution at 16 least men were needed to man the machines in the factories
17 and thousands of men poured from the farms into the 18 cities to man the machines in the factories, to improve
19 the standard of living, increase the volume of the output 20 of goods necessary to raise our living standards, but 21 we have a peculiar revolution, industrial revolution,