

SOUTHPORT, Conn., May 16, 1865.

W. R. COLE, Esq.,

Sir:—In the editorial department of to-day's New York Tribune, I notice an article entitled "Homes in Maryland," in which the writer speaks of a pamphlet and "other information on the general subject," furnished by you.

Being desirous of leaving crowded New England; I know of no State that would better suit me as a residence than "Free Maryland." Please send me a pamphlet and any other useful information that will not discommode you too much in furnishing.

Respectfully,
