

61st. Joshua Lankford is entered, "known to be disloyal by the Board." What act or word did you or any of the Board know?

A. I did not consider it necessary to be sworn at all as a witness. I have frequently heard him abuse the Government, and I heard him say he would kill the President if he had the power, before he was killed.

62d. John T. Pusey is entered "disfranchised by public reputation." What proof was there thereof?

A. I do not recollect who John T. Pusey is.

63d. Randolph Tollit is "disfranchised upon your testimony, what was it?

A. heard him rejoice at a victory gained by the Confederates.

64th. At what victory, and what did he say?

A. He did not fling up his hat and halloo and hurrah, but in a spirit of rejoicing said, "it was no use for the Northerners to contend with the South," and a good deal more that I can't recollect. I forget at what victory.

65th. Was there but one victory of which you heard him speak?

A. That is a hard question for me to answer. To say that was the only one I can't say it, I heard him frequently talking about victories, but not in the spirit of rejoicing that the first was.

66th. What do you mean by a spirit of rejoicing?

A. To rejoice is to be glad.

67th. Did he say he was glad, or did you only so suppose from his manner?

A. He did not say he was glad, but could easily tell whether a man regrets a thing or rejoices at it.

68th. He did not say then, in any of those conversations, as well as you can recollect, that he was glad or that he desired the South to prevail over the North?

A. No, but he said they would prevail.

69th. Do you consider the declaration of an opinion that the South would prevail as equivalent to saying he desired it to prevail?

A. I do.

70th. What did Henry Pollit admit before the Board to cause his disfranchisement?

A. I do not recollect.
