

ters, did not offer to testify to you or state to you that the William Anadale who had offered to vote, was the identical person with the Anadale appearing on the list?

A. He did so state.

12th. Look upon the name, William Potter, opposite No. 161 on the same paper, and state whether the said Samuel Gibbons did not offer to testify to you or state to you that the Henry W. Potter, who offered to vote, was the identical person with the Potter appearing on the list as William Potter?

A. I think he did.

13th. Look upon the names, Levin McGrath, opposite No. 152, and Thomas Parker, and state whether Samuel Gibbons did not offer to testify or state to you that the Levin McGrath and Levin T. Parker, who offered to vote, were respectively identical with the Levin McGrath and Thomas Parker, whose names appear on the list?

A. He did.

14th. Did the Judges of Election, after they had determined to set aside the list, as you have stated in your direct examination, make any of the pencil marks which appear upon the paper which is filed as a part of your deposition?

A. We did not.

15th. Was it not known to you at the time that Isaac D. Jones, Esq., of whom you have spoken, made his statement to you, that he, the said Isaac D. Jones, had, throughout the war, openly and publicly, in public speeches advocated the doctrine of the secession of the Southern States, approved of the course of the Southern Confederacy, denounced the Government in prosecuting the war to put down the Rebellion, and had opposed all measures to supply the Government with men or money for that purpose?

[This question and answer objected to by claimant.]

A. So far from knowing that Mr. Jones advocated the secession of the Southern States, the contrary is the fact, so far as I have heard Mr. Jones speak I was present before the house of Mr. Jones' father, on the 22d of February, 1861, when Mr. Jones made a speech from his father's porch, in which he deeply deplored the action that was then being taken by a number of Southern States; and I have never heard him, upon any occasion, approve the course which they adopted. As to Mr. Jones' State Rights principles, they are on record in speeches made by him while he was acting as the representative of the people of this county, in the Legislature and the late Constitutional Convention.
