*To the Honorable,
The General Assembly of Maryland.*

The memorial of the Visitors and Governors of St. John's College, Annapolis, incorporated by the Act of 1784, ch. 37, respectfully represents:

That many of the most distinguished citizens of Maryland, and public-spirited individuals, as set forth in their Charter, "being desirous to embrace the favorable occasion of peace and prosperity for making lasting provision for the encouragement and advancement of all useful knowledge and literature through every part of the State," entered into a contract with the State whereby they paid into the State Treasury large sums of money amounting to about thirty-two thousand dollars to found this College (as the charter further states) "in order to train up and perpetuate a succession of able and honest men for discharging the various offices and duties of life, both civil and religious with usefulness and reputation."
