

equestrian figure of the Lord Proprietary, symbolizing his personal authority. He was represented arrayed in complete armor, and bearing a drawn sword in his hand. The caparisons of his horse were adorned with the family coat-of-arms. On the ground below were represented some flowers and grass growing. The entire figure was admirably designed and full of life. On the circle surrounding this side of the seal was this inscription: Cæcilius Absolutus Dominus Terræ Mariæ et Avaloniæ Baro de' Baltimore. On the reverse was Lord Baltimore's hereditary coat of arms. The first and fourth quarters represented the arms of the Calvert family, described in heraldic language as paly of six pieces, or and sable, a bend counter-changed. The second and third quarters showed the arms of the Crossland family, which Cæcilius inherited from his grandmother, Alicia, daughter of John Crossland, Esquire, of Crossland Yorkshire, and wife of Leonard Calvert, the father of George, first Lord Baltimore.

The coat is quarterly, argent and gules, a cross bottony counter-changed. Above the shield was placed an earl's coronet; above that a helmet set full faced; and over that the Calvert crest, two pennons, the dexter or, the other sable, staves gules, issuing from a ducal coronet. The supporters upon this seal were a plowman and a fisherman, designated respectively by a spade and a fish held in the hand. The motto was that adopted by the Calvert family, Fatti maschi parole femine. Two interpretations exist of this motto—"Womanly (Courteous) words and manly deeds," and "A woman for words and a man for deeds." Behind and surrounding both shield and supporters was depicted an ermine lined mantle, and on the circle, about this side of the seal, were the words; Scuto bonæ voluntatis, tauæ coronasti nos."

THE THIRD SEAL.

During the sway of the Royal Governors from 1692 to 1715 other seals came into use. Upon the obverse were the royal arms of England, with this inscription upon the border: Gulielmus III. et Marie II, Dei Gratia Mag. Brit. Fran. et Hiber. Rex et Regina Fidei Defensores. On the reverse was the royal cypher, surmounted by a crown, and these words upon the circumference: Sigillum Provinciæ de Maryland in America. This seal continued in use until 1706, when it was returned to England.
