

Mr. Thomas, submitted the following:

BY THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES,

February 7th, 1867.

Ordered, That the Trustees of St. Johns' College report to this House, distinctly and categorically, answers to the following interrogatories:

First, What is the salary of the Principal of the said institution, and what are the other free privileges connected therewith? When was he appointed, and when did his salary commence? What branches is he appointed to, and required to teach, and what is he actually engaged in teaching, and what time is he daily employed therein? Has he any other engagements or employments than those immediately connected with his duties as Principal?

Second, Is there a vice-Principal, or acting vice-Principal, and by what and whose authority was he appointed? Is the Faculty composed of all the professors and teachers, named in the College circular, published as having been appointed during the past summer? If not, how many compose the existing Faculty, and at what time, and how were they, in whole, or in part appointed? What is the salary of each professor, and what his other free privileges? What branches do they severally, actually teach, and what time is each daily employed in teaching, and when did the salary of each commence? Have any of them been, or are they now engaged in any employments not directly connected with their duties in the College? and if so, by whose authority or permission did they engage in such employments? How many of the pupils are paying scholars? How many are beneficiaries, and where are they from, and by whom, and by what authority, were they taken into the College?

Third. What is the number of pupils in the institution since its present organization? How many are from Annapolis and Anne Arundel County, and how many are from the other, and what counties of the State? How many are pursuing the branches usually taught in a school, or a preparatory department, and how many are exclusively so far advanced as to be qualified to pursue the studies usually pursued by under graduates in other colleges. Are there (and how many are there) pupils now in the institution who will complete such a full course of the languages and other sciences within the next one, two or three years, as will entitle them, under the charter, to Degrees of Bachelors of Art? Are there College Commons provided, and how many pupils are accommodated there.

Fourth. What was the amount of money paid by the Quartermaster-General's Department for the use of the College
