Also, the following order :

BY THE SENATE,

March 7, 1867.

Whereas, an order of this body requiring Senate bills, now in the hands of the printer, to be printed and returned immediately, has been utterly disregarded, and whereas among these bills, there are several of very great importance to the people of the State which seem to have been purposely neglected, whilst bills of minor importance, long since committed to the hands of the printer have been given precedence, and whereas, similar complaints have been heard from the House of Delegates, therefore

Be it ordered by the Senate and House of Delegates, That the Joint Committees on printing be required to inquire into such neglect or seemingly purposed delay, and that said committee be authorized to adopt such measures as will remedy the evil complained of, and secure the immediate printing of all matter ordered to be printed by either branch of the Legislature.

By order,

A. GASSAWAY.
Secretary.

Which was concurred in.
