

want Twigg, all to vote who are registered, I do'nt care how they vote: If you or any other man challenge another vote to-day, I'll knock him down or make him knock me down. This was early in the morning, just after the polls opened. There was no other disturbance at the polls during the day, while I remained there, and this would not have occurred had it not been for Griffin Twigg. It was his challenging the vote that caused the disturbance. I might have been as much in fault as he. He has had disturbances there previously on election days.

3d Interrogatory. Were there not rumors, previous to the election, that the Conservatives that were registered in 1866, should not vote?

Answer. I was told by one of my neighbors that there was talk of a party being organized for such a purpose, and I thought Griffin Twigg's challenge of Wagoner's vote was the commencement of it

CHRISTOPHER KELLY.

OFFICE MR. J. BROWN,
December 29, '66.

JOHN M. ARMSTRONG, being sworn, and examined by interrogatories, deposes and says :

1st Interrog. What is your age, occupation and residence?

Answer. I am over 50 years of age, a surveyor, and claim residence in Maryland.

2d Interrog. Were you an officer in the Federal Army; if so, what rank did you hold, and to what organization did you belong?

Answer. I was an officer in the Federal Army, 1st Lieutenant of Company "D," 3d Regiment P. H. B., Md. Vol. Inf.

3d Interrog. Was there, or not, belonging to that Company and Regiment, a man by the name of William Savage; and was, or was he not, a deserter—state fully.

Answer. There was a man named William Savage in said Company and Regiment. He did desert the command a few days after he enlisted, and never returned. I saw him at one time in Cumberland, in charge of an officer who was taking him to the regiment, then lying at Buchanan, W. Va. I reached the regiment, but he did not. There was no other man named Savage in the company.

Cross-examined for the Contestants.

1st Interrog. Do you know whether this man was ever
