

Headnotes	Present Constitution	Constitution of 1867	Constitution of 1864
	laboring under legal disabilities, by executors, administrators, guardians or trustees; giving effect to informal, or invalid deeds or wills; refunding money paid into the State Treasury, or releasing persons from their debts, or obligations to the State, unless recommended by the Governor, or officers of the Treasury Department. And the General Assembly shall pass no special Law, for any case, for which provision has been made, by an existing General Law. The General Assembly, at its first Session after the adoption of this Constitution, shall pass General Laws, providing for the cases enumerated in this section, which are not already adequately provided for, and for all other cases, where a General Law can be made applicable.	laboring under legal disabilities, by executors, administrators, guardians or trustees; giving effect to informal, or invalid deeds or wills; refunding money paid into the State Treasury, or releasing persons from their debts, or obligations to the State, unless recommended by the Governor, or officers of the Treasury Department. And the General Assembly shall pass no special Law, for any case, for which provision has been made, by an existing General Law. The General Assembly, at its first session after the adoption of this Constitution, shall pass General Laws, providing for the cases enumerated in this section, which are not already adequately provided for, and for all other cases, where a General Law can be made applicable.	Providing for the support of the public schools; The preservation of school funds; The location or the regulation of school houses; Granting divorces; Relating to fees or salaries; Relating to the interest on money; Providing for regulating the election or compensation of State or county officers; Or designating the places of voting; Or the boundaries of election districts; Providing for the sale of real estate belonging to minors or other persons laboring under legal disabilities, by executors, administrators, guardians or trustees; Giving effect to informal or invalid deeds or wills; Refunding money paid into the State treasury, or releasing persons from their debts or obligations to the State, unless recommended by the Governor or officers of the treasury department; Or establishing, locating or affecting the construction of roads, and the repairing or building of bridges. And the General Assembly shall pass no special law for any case for which provision has been made by an existing general law. The General Assembly at its first session after the adoption of this Constitution, shall pass

Constitution of 1851	Constitution of 1776	Amendments to 1776 Constitution