

78 WILLS AND TESTAMENTS.

tho' written by another person, and never signed by the testator, if by his instructions and approbation. Swin. 353—Gilb. rep. 26q—Comyns 452.

Wills of personal estate, held to be good,

Three testamentary schedules, one without date, the second written in witness, but there was no witness, the third concluded abruptly, yet, being written by the testator, they were declared to be his will.—So, where a woman sent for a person to make her will, and gave him instructions, and he writ it accordingly, and being read, she approved thereof, and died before any other execution.—So, where a will of real and personal estate was prepared to be executed, tho' there were several blanks in it, and the testator died before execution, yet held good as to the personal estate.—So, the testator intending to make his will, pulled a paper out of his pocket, writ down some things with ink, some with a pencil, and tho' it had no conclusion, but appeared to be a draught, or sketch, which he intended afterwards to finish, for it was not signed, but had at the end a calculation of his effects, an account of his tea table, and an order to pay a dividend of stocks, yet held good, as to the personal estate.—So where the testator gave instructions to make his will of his real and personal estate, and when it
