

60. He shall note their diseases, prescriptions and treatment; and in case of death, their age, place of birth, time of death, and every thing which he may deem necessary; and this record shall remain at the prison, and be open to the inspection of the authorities thereof.

61. He shall, when absent, procure some one to attend in his place, to be approved by the monthly committee of directors.

62. He shall have such aid as he may require, on information to the warden; and none shall interfere with the treatment of the sick, or the conduct of the hospital, except so far as may be necessary to enforce discipline.

63. He shall examine convicts at their admission, and note their bodily defects, for the direction of the warden in assigning their tasks.

64. He shall make a requisition on the warden when anything is necessary for the hospital; and shall keep an account thereof, to be noted in his monthly report to the Board of Directors.

65. He shall make a report to the board monthly of the health of the prison, including post mortem examinations, and furnish the warden daily with a list of those exempted from labor or reported sick.

66. The discipline of the prison shall be rigidly enforced in this department, by the presence of proper officers; the patients may be nursed and attended to by convicts, but they shall not have charge of or access to the medicines at any time; these shall be at all times under the direction and care of the assistant warden, or guard in this department.

67. Convicts shall not be discharged while laboring under diseases, except at their own request.

68. The bodies of deceased convicts may be claimed by their friends, or devoted to scientific examination at the medical schools, or buried in Potter's field.
