

or through ignorance put upon any barrel or cask of salted fish any mark other than its condition and quality requires, he shall suspend such sub-inspector and transmit a statement in writing of the grounds of such suspension under oath to the Governor, and the Governor may continue such suspension or reinstate the sub-inspector as the case may require.

299. The sub-inspectors shall, at the end of every month, render an account, under oath, and pay over to the chief inspector all money received by them for their services as inspectors, or for charges of inspection, and the chief inspector shall divide monthly, in equal proportions, between the sub-inspectors and himself, all money so received by him.

300. The fees of such inspectors shall be as follows: for the inspection of each barrel, half barrel or tierce of shad or mackerel fish, ten cents; for each barrel, half barrel or tierce of herrings, three cents.

301. The master or owner of any vessel shall pay to the inspector one and a half cents for every barrel, half barrel or tierce mentioned in the certificates hereinafter required to be given by them.

302. All coopers who may be engaged in the re-cooperage of fish during the time of inspection shall be under the control of the chief inspector, who may discharge any cooper who shall refuse, fail or neglect to perform his duties in a workmanlike or satisfactory manner.

303. If any cooper shall refuse to leave said barrels, half barrels or tierces, after having received his discharge, and shall persist in working thereon, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty dollars.

304. When any fish shall be brought to the city of Baltimore, the owners or inspectors, or their agents, shall, within forty-eight hours after the landing of the same, deliver to the chief or one of the sub-inspectors, a written report containing the number and kinds of casks of fish, and the place or places where they may be deposited, so that the same may be inspected, under the penalty of one dollar for each cask imported and neglected to be reported.
