

them until the damage, with the expense of keeping the same, shall be paid.

133. The damage sustained by any person as mentioned in the preceding section shall be ascertained by two freeholders, one chosen by the owner of such swine and the other by the person impounding, or if either refuse, both by the other party, and if the referees cannot agree they may choose a third.

134. Any person who shall impound any swine under the 132d section of this article, shall advertise the same at least fifteen days at the store doors of said town, and at the Methodist meeting house near thereto, and at the end of said fifteen days, if no person shall claim the same, prove property and pay damages and costs of keeping, the person impounding may sell such swine at public sale and apply the proceeds to the payment of the damages sustained by him, and pay the surplus, if any, to the owner.

135. If any person residing in said town shall permit his chimney to catch fire so as to blaze out of the top, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of three dollars.

136. Any person residing in said town, who shall keep or suffer any dog or bitch to remain about his house for the space of one week, shall, on or before the first day of January, annually, pay the sum of fifty cents.
