One June 1, 1941, the responsibility of the state supervision over certain instalment houses was assigned to this office by the Legislature through the Acts of 1941, Chapter 851. This called for a small increase in the personnel of the department, who though handicapped by the sudden abnormal expansion of business brought on by the war, have been able by their supervision to hold to a minimum those abuses that necessitated the passage of such an Act by the General Assembly. This section of the office is also sustained by the fees obtained for licenses secured therefrom.
