II BALTIMORE CITY

Note: When Baltimore City became a separate governmental entity, divorced from all county connections, it maintained the officers characteristic of Maryland county government at that time with the exception of those in the Executive branch, who were called Mayor and Council rather than Board of County Commissioners. Since that time the expansion of the City has brought about a high degree of specialization in the executive and administrative agencies so that the present government of Baltimore, with the exception of the traditional county offices and functions, bears little resemblance to the government of most counties. Nevertheless, there seems to be sufficient resemblance between the city charter and the charters of Montgomery and Baltimore counties to justify grouping the city offices in categories similar to those worked out for the charter counties. Information about the methods of appointment and terms of office of the traditional county officers will be found on pp. 269-71. Such information about all other city officials will be found in the footnotes.
