The Board of School Commissioners of Baltimore City established the State Teachers College of Baltimore (Coppin) in 1900 and operated it until the State assumed control by Chapter 296, Acts of 1951. The school became a separate institution in 1909 and received its present name in honor of Fannie Jackson Coppin, a former slave who had purchased her freedom and became the first Negro woman in the United States to receive a college degree. By Chapter 41, Acts of 1963, the college was changed from a teachers college to a State college with the authority to institute liberal arts programs as soon as the conversion is feasible. The college provides a four-year curriculum for the training of elementary school teachers and grants the degree of Bachelor of Science. The enrollment of the college for the 1962-63 year was 371.
