This school was established by Chapter 291, Acts of 1882 as the Industrial School for Girls. The school was purchased by the State by Chapter 367, Acts of 1931 and the name changed to the Maryland Training School for Colored Girls. The 1949 General Assembly authorized the adoption of the present name (Chapter 314, Acts of 1949). The school provides for the care and education of delinquent girls thirteen years of age and under. During the fiscal year 1962, it provided care for 90 girls committed to the school and 128 girls who were detained there.

The State Department of Public Welfare operates three forestry camps for boys in cooperation with the State Department of Forests and Parks. These camps were created by Chapter 370, Acts of 1955. The three camps are combined into a single administrative unit with one budget and one central business management unit located in the Green Ridge State Forest, Flintstone. These camps serve older boys received on transfer from the Maryland Training School for Boys, Boys' Village of Maryland, and the Maryland Children's Center (Code 1957, Art. 88A, secs. 39 and 39A). Boys selected for transfer must be at least 15½ years of age, must be in good physical health, and must be interested in an active outdoor work and living experience. The camps were created in the conviction that older boys could be guided back to good citizenship under care in these camps, and that at the same time the boys would be assisting in the conservation of the State's natural resources and contributing to the cost of their maintenance. During the fiscal year 1963, the camps served a total of 368 boys.
