

mandatory use of seat belts; tighter regulations on the savings and loan industry; creation of a sports authority; new housing programs; a victim's bill of rights; programs to discourage teen pregnancies; restrictions on development along the Chesapeake Bay; and increased education aid.

Among bills that failed or were vetoed were those that concerned slot machines for non-profit groups; tax amnesty; home teaching guidelines; dog-racing; and repeal of Sunday closing laws.

Twenty-five Constitutional Amendments were considered and 4 were approved by the General Assembly and ratified by the voters.

There were no vetoed bills to be considered during the 1986 session. Those bills that the Governor vetoed from the 1985 Regular Session and 1985 First Special Session already had been considered during the 1985 Second Special Session.
