CLERKS OF THE COURT OF APPEALS

The position of Clerk of the Court of Appeals was authorized in 1780 (Chapter 23, Acts of March Session 1780). The Clerk was appointed by the judges of the Court. Under the several acts reorganizing the judiciary of Maryland in 1806, the Court of Appeals held separate terms for the Western Shore and the Eastern Shore, and a clerk was appointed for each shore (Chapter 55, Acts of 1804; Chapters 16, 65, Acts of 1805). Since the adoption of the Constitution of 1851, the Court of Appeals has held its sessions at Annapolis only and has had only one Clerk of Court. From 1851, the clerk held office for six years and could be reappointed (Const. 1851, Art. 4, sec. 3). In 1867 the Clerk's office became elective (Const. 1867, Art. 4, sec. 17). Clerks were chosen by the qualified voters of the State. In 1939 the office again became appointive and without limited term (Chapter 40, Acts of 1939).

JUDGES OF THE COURT OF SPECIAL APPEALS

The Court of Special Appeals was created in 1966 by constitutional amendment (Chapters 11, 12, Acts of 1966). Originally, there were five judges, each elected from a special appellate circuit. In 1970 special appellate circuits were abolished and one judge was then elected from each of the first five Appellate Judicial Circuits, two from the sixth Appellate Judicial Circuit representing Baltimore City, and two from the State at large (Chapter 99, Acts of 1970). The number of judges has increased several times: from five to nine in 1970, from nine to ten in 1972 (Chapter 361, Acts of 1972), from ten to twelve in 1974 (Chapter 706, Acts of 1974), and from twelve to thirteen in 1977 (Chapter 252, Acts of 1977). Currently, six of the thirteen judges are elected from the State at large.
