

An ongoing survey of Maryland's historic sites is carried out by the Trust through contract with local jurisdictions. Results of these surveys are being published. The most significant sites are eligible for nomination to the National Register through the Trust. Properties listed on the National Register receive a degree of protection from federally licensed or funded projects that might adversely affect them.

The Trust's community education program includes the administration of a local volunteer network, represented by advisory organizations (one in each county, in Baltimore City, and in Annapolis). Besides carrying out their own local preservation programs, these organizations assist the Trust by promoting its programs, grants and loans; sponsoring Preservation Week activities; and advising the Trust on preservation needs and interests. The Trust conducts an annual conference and sponsors regional workshops. It hosts special events and issues publications, including news sheets and a quarterly news magazine.

The Trust maintains a library of archival and photographic material relating to Maryland's archeological and architectural history.

The Board of Trustees of the Maryland Historical Trust is composed of fifteen members. Twelve are appointed to four-year terms by the Governor with Senate advice and consent. Three serve ex officio: the Governor, the Senate President, and the Speaker of the House of Delegates, or their designees. Trustees appoint eight area representatives to serve one-year terms. The Board also appoints the Director.

Maryland's State Historic Preservation Officer, appointed by the Governor pursuant to the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, is a member of the Trust staff. Preservation activities as required by the federal government are carried out by the State Historic Preservation Officer in concert with the Trust (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 5-601 through 5-619).

The Committee provides oversight and advice regarding operational and development planning of the Jefferson Patterson Park and Museum at St. Leonard, Calvert County. Opened to the public in 1984, the Park extends along two and 1/2 miles of shoreline on the Patuxent River and St. Leonard's Creek. It is located on the 512-acre Point Farm, which was deeded to the State by Mary Marvin Breckinridge Patterson in honor of her husband, Jefferson Patterson. The Park and Museum will be developed over the next ten years as an educational, research and recreational facility.

It meets only when the Maryland Historical Trust and another State unit disagree on how to minimize adverse effects from State-assisted undertakings on properties listed in or eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

Comments of the Council are advisory, and final decisions regarding affected projects rest with the cognizant agency head. State agencies also may seek the advice of the Council in similar cases involving
