Bowie State University evolved from the first school opened in Baltimore by the Baltimore Association for the Moral and Educational Improvement of Colored People in 1865. The school was reorganized in 1893 as the Baltimore Normal School for the training of teachers. In 1908, the General Assembly designated it as Normal School

No. 3, a State institution (Chapter 599, Acts of 1908). After relocation to Prince George's County, the School by 1914 was known as the Maryland Normal and Industrial School at Bowie. It was renamed the Maryland Teachers College at Bowie in 1935 and Bowie State College in 1963. On July 1, 1988, the College became Bowie State University (Chapter 293, Acts of 1988).

Today, Bowie State University is a fully accredited liberal arts institution with over 3,000 students enrolled in diverse academic courses. Twenty-nine majors are offered, including master's degrees in computer science, management information systems, human resources development, Adlerian psychology, and administrative management. The University also offers an honors program, an Army ROTC program, and an athletic program that fields eight intercollegiate sports in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (CIAA) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). In addition, the University's cooperative education program has an excellent record of placing students after graduation.
