Baltimore, MD 21224 (410) 550-2271

The Governor appointed the Board of Directors of the Maryland Bioprocessing Center, Inc., in December 1991. The Center is a private, nonprofit organization created by industry leaders from across Maryland in conjunction with The Johns Hopkins University, the University of Maryland System, and Maryland State government. The Center promotes the growth of the biotechnology and bioprocessing industries in Maryland. Capitalizing on the State's renowned biomedical research base, the Center works to establish Maryland as a world leader in these industries.

To achieve this mission, the Center will build a "scale-up" biopharmaceutical manufacturing facility. In 1994, the Bioprocessing Center Facility will be constructed in East Baltimore at the Bayview Industrial Park, 5901 East Lombard Street. The Facility will offer Maryland biotechnology companies affordable access in Maryland to pharmaceutical-grade (GMP) manufacturing facilities, equipment, technical expertise, and regulatory guidance. With the recent growth in the biotechnology industry, Maryland firms project $3 to $5 billion in product sales, $500 to $750 million in capital investment, 40,000 jobs, and $100 million in tax dollars by the next decade.

The Governor appoints the Board's twelve members.
