SPECIAL POPULATIONS DIVISION

Gloria A. Merriam, Chief
(410) 767-6550

The Special Populations Division began in Fiscal Year 1985 as a project of the Alcoholism Control Administration. It continued under the Special Projects Division when the Addictions Services Administration was formed in 1987. The following year, it was organized into the Youth, Adolescents, and Family Division; in 1993 as the Children, Youth, and Families Division; and in 1995 received its present name.

For adolescents addicted to drugs or alcohol, and for their families, the Division develops, monitors, and funds assessment and treatment services. Youths under age 18 or, if eligible for Medical Assistance, under age 21, and their families may secure help locally. Services include screening; clinical assessment; drug and alcohol education, and counseling; clinical intervention; case management; residential treatment and long-term continuing care; intensive outpatient and day treatment; and family therapy. Teenagers are referred by local schools, departments of social services, or offices of juvenile services for treatment. The Division also assists and monitors local public and private programs developing services for women, women with infants and children, and pregnant women.
