Baltimore City Community College originated in 1947 when Baltimore Junior College was established. The College was reformed as the Community College of Baltimore in 1968. As the New Community College of Baltimore, a two-year school, it became a State institution of higher education in 1990 (Chapter 220, Acts of 1990). In 1992, the school received its present name (Chapter 208, Acts of 1992).

Baltimore City Community College offers programs for associate degrees and certificates in more than thirty fields, including computer science, electronics, nursing, business, allied health, legal assisting, and office technology. In addition to job training and transfer programs, the College offers extensive noncredit programs in basic literacy, General Education Development (G.E.D.) test preparation, and English as a second language. The College also works to meet the needs of Baltimore employers through courses and programs at its downtown Business and Continuing Education Center.

With a faculty of 120 full-time and over 500 part-time instructors, the College annually serves more than 8,000 students at the Liberty Heights campus, the Harbor campus, and many other sites throughout Baltimore.

The College is governed by a nine-member Board of Trustees, appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent. Eight members serve six-year terms. A student member serves a one-year term. The Board of Trustees appoints the President (Code Education Article, secs. 16-601 through 16-610).

The Bicycle Advisory Committee was formed in December 1991 (Chapter 624, Acts of 1991). The Committee advises State government agencies on funding bicycle related programs; public education and awareness of bicycling activities and safety; and other bicycling issues. Presently, the Committee has six subcommittees which consider safety and education; law and enforcement; commuting; trail issues; promotion and economic development; and legislative affairs and funding.

Appointed by the Governor, the Committee has thirteen members (Code Transportation Article, sec. 21-1213).
