

jurisdiction are made upon the express condition that this State shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and on the said ceded lands and territory, (so far as that all civil and criminal process, as may issue under the authority of this State, against any person or persons charged with crimes committed without said lands and ceded territory, may be executed therein in the same way and manner as though this grant and cession had never been made, except so far as such process may affect the real and personal property of the United States within the said ceded lands and territory.)

SEC. 2. And be it enacted, That the lands and territory over which the jurisdiction is ceded by this Act, together with all personal property which may hereafter be within the bounds thereof belonging to the United States, or to any of the officers or agents of the United States, shall be exonerated and discharged from all taxes and assessments which may be at any time imposed by the authority of this State, when and so long as the said lands and territory are and shall remain the property of the United States, and be used for the purposes aforesaid. Exonerated from taxes.

SEC. 3. And be it enacted, That no license that may hereafter be granted under authority of this State, for the taking or catching oysters or fish within the waters of the State, shall authorize the holder thereof to fish or oyster within the limits of the grant made by this Act. No license to be granted.

SEC. 4. And be it enacted, That this Act shall take effect from the date of its passage. In force.

Approved April 1, 1872.
