

The Quarterly Journal of Economics.

Published for Harvard University.

Editor,

F. W. TAUSSIG.

Associate Editors,

T. N. CARVER, W. Z. RIPLEY

This Journal aims to supply the needs of students of economics and public questions who have time to read only the most scholarly and authoritative articles. Each number contains at least one article on a timely subject and at least one on the general principles of economic science. It is the aim of the editors to present only matter of permanent value, and to make the file of the Journal of continuous and increasing usefulness.

In addition to the articles and notes, the Journal publishes regularly an annotated bibliography of recent publications on economics, in which summary information is given as to books and articles in periodicals, American and European. This list is designed to be as complete as possible, and to aid teachers and librarians in keeping in touch with the literature of the subject.

The Journal is published by Harvard University with the sole view of promoting the advance and spread of economic science.

Remittances for subscription ($3.00 a year) should be sent to the publishers, Geo. H. Ellis Co., 272 Congress Street, Boston, Mass. Communications for the editors should be addressed to the
