

the persons to whom the case was sent. (p) All reports of a master, of a special master, and of commissioners to account were estate of her, the said Achsa Fottrell; notwithstanding which the said commissioners have, in their manner of stating the accounts, blended the several transactions together; and have not distinguished what moneys were received by the aforesaid Achsa, during her widowhood; and what by the said Edward Fottrell, after his marriage, in the proceedings in this cause set forth; nor, if this Honorable Court should be of opinion, that the estate of the said Amos Woodward should be credited with the interest in the accounts mentioned, have they distinguished and shewn, whether the interest, so said to be received or admitted to be received, was so received or omitted to be received by the said Achsa Fottrell, or by the said Edward Fottrell, thereby to enable this Court to determine to which of their two estates the same is chargeable and to be charged.

OGLE, C., May, 1747.—The exceptions to the commissioners' report standing for argument, and the counsel on both sides being heard, it is Ordered, that the exceptions be overruled; and that the defendant pay to the complainants the quantity of 600 pounds of tobacco for the delay; and that there be a hearing of the said cause the next Court.

After which the case was brought before the Court, and the solicitors of the parties were fully heard.

OGLE, C., October, 1747.—Decreed, that the said William Chapman pay, out of the estate of Achsa Fottrell, and Edward Fottrell, which have come to his hands, to each of the complainants the sum of 43½ pounds of tobacco, £51 15s. 3½d. current money, in gold or silver, £216 7s. 0½d. sterling money of Great Britain, of which said sum £80 10s. 6d. is each child's part of the price of the negroes belonging to the estate of Amos Woodward, as the same were sold by Achsa Woodward and Levin Gale, and William Chapman, exclusive of any negroes that were Edward Fottrell's, or which came to his possession, in any other manner than by his marriage with Achsa Woodward, administratrix of Amos Woodward; and £377 19s. 10d. paper money of Maryland, [1733, ch. 6.] And that the said William Chapman shall, out of the said estate of Achsa Fottrell and Edward Fottrell, which have come to his hands, likewise make payment of the several sums following, to wit, to each of the complainants the sum of £9 1s. 8d. paper money of Maryland, in white servants; and the sum of £32 1s. 7d. paper money of Maryland, in cattle, horses, and sheep; and the sum of £13 6s. 6d. paper money of Maryland, in plate, belonging to the complainants' late father, Amos Woodward; and the sum of £2 15s. 11d. in gold tea spoons, belonging to the complainants' late father, as the same were valued in his estate. And it is Ordered, that the white servants, cattle, horses, and sheep, be valued by Thomas Worthington and John Bullen, of Anne Arundel County, gentlemen; and that they value the same, as near as can be, of like value with the white servants, horses, cattle and sheep that were appraised in the estate of the complainants' father, Amos Woodward.
