¹Although having lost most of its political base an "Old Line Whig Convention" was held with delegates from 21 states participating.

²Reconvened from a deadlocked convention which began in Charleston, South Carolina, April 23–May 3, 1860. The defecting delegates from the Charleston meeting and bolting delegates from the Baltimore session met on June 23, 1860 in Baltimore and nominated John C. Breckinridge to run for President as a Southern Democrat.
