Annapolis. Maryland

February 5th. 1789.

Sir

of obedience to the Resolutions of the Convention, who framed the New Constitution of the United States of America, and in pursuance of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland, we have with pleasure transmit to you the Certificate of the Electors for the said State of their votes for a President and Vice President of the United States of America.

In behalf of the Electors present I have the honor to do with great respect,

Your most obedient Servant
J. Rogers.

The Honorable, the Secretary of the United States in Congress assembled.
