

also represented, that the said Ann Clement, was a source of much trouble and expense to the said Achilles Gilbert, for which he has never been indemnified, and that doubts exist whether the commissioners of Cecil county, have power to afford him adequate relief;—Therefore,

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, ^{Levy and pay}
That the said commissioners of Cecil county, be and they are hereby authorised at their discretion, to levy upon the assessable property of said county, in addition to the usual taxes, a sum of money which they may deem sufficient to discharge the whole or any part of the account of said Achilles Gilbert, against the county as they may think right and reasonable.

CHAPTER 246.

A further Supplement to an act passed at December session, ^{Passed Mar. 15, 1834} eighteen hundred and twenty five, chapter one hundred and seventy four.

WHEREAS, by an act of Assembly, passed at December ^{Preamble} session, eighteen hundred and thirty-one, chapter two hundred and nine, section fourth, the General Inspector created by virtue of that act was required to procure samples of flour of the most approved brands of the Inspection of other places to be renewed quarterly, and upon consultation with the other Inspectors, and two commissioners of review fix a standard for Flour of each degree of fineness for the regulation of the inspection thereof in the city of Baltimore, which standard to be renewed quarter yearly, was not to be inferior in quality to flour of the best brand of any inspection in the United States; and whereas, doubts are entertained with regard to the propriety of the discretion thus reposed of renewing the standard thus quarter yearly for remedy whereof.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of ^{Standard of Flour}
Maryland, That the General Inspector of Flour upon consultation with the other Inspectors and two commissioners of review, shall fix a standard of flour of each degree of fineness in accordance with the provision of section the fourth as aforesaid, which said standard shall be renewed semi-annually.
