

Indeed, some tinkering has already occurred. In its 1982 session, the legislature enacted at least eight laws that modify or affect procurement procedures.⁷² Some of these are merely clarifying in nature; others, such as chapter 141, which permits the procurement of "human, cultural, social or educational services" by methods other than those set forth in the procurement law, are more substantial.

72. See Acts of 1982, chs. 4, 115, 116, 141, 172, 328, 608, 915.