

General Motors Corporation

The 3,800 employees at the General Motors Corporation facility in Baltimore help build nearly 200,000 vehicles every year for customers in Maryland and throughout the world. (Photo courtesy of General Motors Corporation)

Bartley Collection

Many historic homes and furnishings in Maryland's 355-year history have become the stuff of legends, especially on the Eastern Shore where one Talbot County company helps those legends come to life piece by piece. As one of the oldest and largest manufacturers of museum-quality reproduction furniture kits in America, the Bartley Collection in Easton provides over 200 opportunities for collectors to build and preserve a symbol of 18th century life — from the simple elegance of a candlestand to the intricately carved Queen Anne highboy. (Photo courtesy of Bartley Collection)

Gordon Douglass Boats

For over 32 years, Gordon Douglass Boats of Deer Park in Garrett County has been producing "the all-American family sailboat." Designed by champion sailor Gordon Douglass, the 19-foot Flying Scot charts a unique course in Maryland maritime heritage as one of the few sailboats geared to novices enjoying the Chesapeake Bay, Deep Creek Lake and other water playgrounds. (Photo courtesy of Gordon Douglass Boats)