

BATTERY B, LIGHT ARTILLERY [2nd], "EAGLE ARTILLERY."

BATTERY B (second), Maryland Light Artillery, better known as the Eagle Artillery, was organized at Baltimore, Md., in July, 1863, for six months, under the President's proclamation of June 15, 1863.

The duties this battery performed were strictly of a local character, especially engaged in the defenses of Baltimore, Md.

It was mustered out of service January 16, 1864, by reason of expiration of term of service.