Where the court of appeals orders a new trial, the lower court has power to stay further proceedings until the costs are paid—art. 75, sec. 70.

Ibid. sec. 15. 1888, art. 5, sec. 14. 1860, art. 5, sec. 14. 1880, ch. 69.

On reversing any judgment, or part of a judgment, at law, the court of appeals shall have power to give such judgment as ought to have been given by the court below, and may in all cases enforce their judgment by execution.

Where at the end of the plaintiff's case, the lower court erroneously grants a prayer taking the case from the jury, the court of appeals will not enter final judgment for the plaintiff. When the court of appeals will enter final judgment. Howard v. Carpenter, 22 Md. 256.

This section does not authorize the court of appeals to modify a judgment by remitting interest. Frank v. Morrison, 55 Md. 409.

This section gives the appellate court no power to modify criminal sentences, or direct inferior courts to modify them. McDonald v. State, 45 Md. 97. (See, however, section 81, passed to give the court such power.)
This section applied. Benzinger v. Gles, 87 Md. 709; McCormick v.

Deaver, 22 Md. 195.

This section held applicable Howard v. Carpenter, 22 Md. 26. As to judgments, see art. 26, sec. 14, et seq.

Ibid. sec. 16. 1900, ch. 367, sec. 14 A.

On reversing any judgment or part of a judgment at law where the case is remanded for a new trial the parties may, by agreement in writing, submit the said case to the court of appeals for final adjudica-
