

An. Code, sec. 46A. 1916, ch. 566, sec. 46A.

50. The Orphans' Court or County Commissioners of the City or County in which idiotic, imbecile or feeble-minded persons may reside who shall hereafter be received into the Rosewood State Training School under the provisions of Section 49 of this Article, shall have full power and authority and it shall be their duty to exercise, with respect to such persons, all the powers conferred and the duties imposed upon the County Commissioners and the Supervisors of City Charities by Section 4 of this Article, to the end that payment for the maintenance and support of such idiotic, imbecile or feeble-minded persons, while in said Rosewood State Training School, may be required, made, collected, and accounted for as in the case of persons embraced within the provisions of said Section 4.

An. Code, sec. 46B. 1916, ch. 566, sec. 46B.

51. Such Orphans' Court or County Commissioners, as the case may be, shall have full power and authority, in the case of all persons heretofore sent to the Rosewood State Training School under the provisions of Section 49 of this Article, and still confined therein, to exercise all of the powers conferred upon them by Section 50 of this Article with respect to persons hereafter to be so sent thereto, to the end that payment for the future maintenance and support of such persons while in such institution may be required, made, collected and accounted for as in the case of persons hereafter to be sent thereto under the provisions of said Section 50.

An. Code, sec. 47. 1904, sec. 40. 1894, ch. 562, sec. 5.

52. It shall be the duty of said visitors when they have the means and facilities at command for so doing to divide said asylum and training school into two distinct departments, one educational, the other custodial. All feeble-minded persons in said institution who are capable of improvement shall be placed in the educational department and shall be taught the rudiments of a common school education, as far as practicable, in connection with culture in manual and industrial occupations, with a view to secure future usefulness and self-support. The custodial department shall be an asylum for such feeble-minded persons in said institution as shall not be capable of improvement by school instruction and who shall require extraordinary surveillance and care.

53. The said Board of Visitors may, in its discretion, parole for an indefinite period such inmates of said institution as they may deem proper, and the superintendent and parole officer of said institution shall have supervision of all such paroled persons during said parole with authority in either or both of said officials to take said paroled persons in custody and return them to the institution when the Board of Visitors may deem such action necessary for the proper care and protection of the person paroled or for the protection of the community.
