

1929, ch. 561, sec. 4.

4. The sole surviving parent of any minor child may, by will duly executed, appoint a suitable guardian of the person or property, or both, of his or her child, whether born at the time of making the will or afterwards; provided, however, that any parent shall have the power, by a duly executed will, to appoint a guardian as to the property which his or her child, whether born at the time of making the will or afterwards, may inherit from him or her. Every such testamentary guardian shall qualify in like manner and with like conditions, and shall have the same powers and perform the same duties with regard to the person, or property, or both of the ward as a guardian appointed by the Orphans' Court.¹

As to guardian and ward, see art. 93, sec. 149, et seq.
