

modifications, however, as to him may seem advisable; but in making any such changes, the same must be done gradually, and not to be enforced in any one year, but with a due regard to economy and consistent with the utilization of all serviceable uniforms now in use in said organizations.

1886, ch. 162, sec. 10.

35. Whenever said organizations shall be ordered into camp as aforesaid, or whenever ordered out by the commander-in-chief, each enlisted man shall be entitled to one dollar and thirty-three cents for each and every day he serves in said camp, and the officers, according to their rank, shall be entitled to pay at the same rate per diem that officers in the service of the United States receive; and the officer detailed for inspection of said force, as above provided, shall be entitled to transportation and pay for the time so occupied such as officers of his rank would receive in the service of the United States; provided, however, that all of said allowances or pay shall be paid only out of the general appropriation for the militia then already existing, and none of said allowances shall be made unless there is sufficient money of said appropriation on hand and otherwise unused; but in order to provide a fund for the said biennial encampment, it shall not be required that any portion of the appropriation unexpended for any one year shall be turned back into the treasury, but such unexpended appropriation may be applicable to the expenditures and encampment of the next fiscal year.

Ibid. sec. 11.

36. In case any officer or man shall serve for the full period of three years, he shall be entitled to a certificate of that fact, signed by the commandant of the regiment, or battalion, or independent company to which he belonged, which, at his option, and only in case he claims such exemption, shall exempt him from jury duty for the full period of three years after the expiration of his term of service.

Ibid. sec. 12.

37. The general appropriation for the militia, outside of the expense of the adjutant general's office and the payment of such obligations as are already due from the same, shall be exclusively applied until otherwise provided by the general assembly, to the
